

All but Sarah:

"YOU CAN HIDE IN THE SHADOWS, SARAH."

Rabbit:

"There are other places to hide. I'm hiding now. I'm hiding in the yard."

Narrator:

Sarah and Mouse looked in the direction of the voice. The sun was shining brightly in the elephant yard, but they could see only green grass and splotchy patches of gray-brown dirt.

Sarah:

"Where are you?"

Rabbit:

"You'll have to find me."

Mouse:

"Are you very small?"

Rabbit:

"Not as small as you are, Mouse."

Sarah:

"Then you must be keeping very still,"

Narrator:

said Sarah. She and Mouse couldn't see anyone.

Let's all ask the hidden animal to come out.
